

ABSTRACT OF THE INVENTION

[0087] Disclosed is a container including a filter which is tapped into the supply and return fuel lines of a vehicle between the tank and the engines fuel injection system. The container is filled with a cleaner which is introduced into the vehicles fuel injection system and cleans the injectors. The system is able to function without the assistance of any other supporting equipment. It simply feeds off of the existing fuel delivery system already existent in the vehicle.